LOCAL NEWS.

FISH TOWN. - Spring with bland zephyrs, bright sunshine and gay flowers, brings, also, Fish Town, inevitable as the vernal equinox. In peace or war, storm or calm, that interesting village rises to greet the sun as he crosses the line, and pours forth (with the early flowers) its odors on the air of spring. For a few years past the ravages of war, -Quartermasters,-and order No. 4, have diminished its importance, but it comes again in the train of peace like a darkey with a bunch of herrings behind his mistress. It does not do to underrate its importance, for Fish Town will have its rights; last year it cost the city a suit, and another suit this year was just escaped. We are sorry to chronicle that the venerable institution seems, so far, to be moving along very slowly. A number of temporary booths have been erected in proximity to the wharf; some of which are already occupied by parties making ready for the coming trade: old hogsheads, tubs and striking vats are under the cooper's hands, being made "good as new;" several restaurants are waiting for custom-and so far this is the sum of Fish Town. It is expected, however, that a few weeks will completely change the aspect of the place, and give to the neighborhood an air of business which even the busiest portion of the town cannot rival. We trust that all parties concerned in the business may find an ample reward for their labors, and that we may have this year, what our people used to believe one of the most sure fore-runpers of a prosperous year, -a good "fishing season."

REV. DR. SAMPSON'S Lecture, at the Methodist Protestant Church, last night, on the Land of Egypt, was a most agreeable and interesting one-and we were only sorry that there were not more to hear it, and profit by the in struction it furnished. The Lecture was in an easy, familiar conversational tone and manner, and all the more pleasant to us, on that account, as a relief from the labored and stilty style of most Lectures, who prepare their compositions as if they were school exercises. And then, too, Dr. S. has had the advantage of seeing and travelling through the regions he describes, and observing not only the face of the country, and the products of the soil, but the habits and manners of the people-all of which he graphically describes. He exhibited the costumes of the people, some specimens of nature and art from the banks of the Nile, and gave us an amusing account of the mode of travelling, and of an Eastern feast. The references to allusions in the Bible, in connection with his subject, were highly interesting. Good maps illustrate and aid the hearer as he follows the speaker. The next Lecture will be at the same place, on Monday evening next, and we hope to see many of our citizens there.

The eclipse of the Moon last night occurred under favorable circumstances for observation, and its different phases were watched by many interested witnesses, it was a beautiful and yet, to a contemplative min3. A very solemn sight. In the early part of the evening the sky was cloudy, but it cleared away sufficiently in due time, and the event appeared to good advantage. At 9.30 P. M. the eastern limb of the moon touched the shadow which the earth throws out into infinite space, and progressing in its orbit sank into it deeper and deeper, until at 10.36 it was completely immersed. It did not, however, become totally invisible, but assumed a dull, coppery hue.-This state of total immersion continued until 14 minutes past 12 o'clock, when the eastern limb again appeared in its wonted silvery brightness, and gradually the orb emerged from the shadow, and at 1.20 a. m. stood out in mid-heaven in its accustomed brilliancy.

THE MARKET, this morning, was not abund antly supplied with country produce, and prices continued enormously high. Ordinary kale was selling at 70c. per peck! Butter 60a65c. per pound. ALEXANDRIA. - We ar : gratified to see many of the names of those with whom we were associated for the last four years, appounced in the Gazette as merchants, tradesmen, and of other professions They deserve well of their countrymen, and should be liberally patronized by the people of Virginia The merchan's of that city, though commencing under many embariassments, are now ready to compete with the trade of other cities. No reason ex ists why it should not be so. With daily com munications with the commercial maris of the country, and regular intercourse with foreign ports, from which trade is invited by her unsurpassed water communication, and her admirable means for inland transportation to all parts of the South, she is prepared and can supply the commercial wants, of not only a large portion of Virginia but of other Southern States. Her merchants and tradesmen have the enterprise, intelligence, and preserverance, to make her a leading commercial city, if she receives the trade her advantages command.-For Dry goods, groceries, Agricultural Implements, fertilizers, &c., her supply is ample for a large and extensive trade. - Leesburg Wask-

ALEXANDRIA CANAL -At a meeting, or conference, held at the Loudoun and Hampshire R. R. Depot office this morning, of the Committee appointed by the City Council, consisting of Messrs. Robertson and Boothe, the Presidents of the two Boards, Messrs. Bryan and Smoot, the Mayor of the city, and the President of the Alexandria Canal Company, Reuben Johnston, esq. a proposition was received from Messrs. Phillip Quigley, H. H. Wells and W. H. Dungan, to lease the Canal for ninetynine years, at $1,000 per annum. As the proposition was indefinite upon some points, among which was the use to which the acqueduct was in future to be put, the subject was referred to Messrs. Johnston and Smoot, for investigation, who will report to another meeting to be held on Monday evening next.

The remains of Franklin Elliott, a member of Kemper's Battery, who died in Richmond during the war, were interred yesterday evening in the grave yard of the Methodist Protestant Church. The coffin was borne from his mother's residence, Yeates' Garden, to their final resting place, on a bier carried by twelve of his former comrades, and followed by a numerous concourse of mournful friends. The funeral ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr.

Brig. Gen. Chas. H. The intelligence office in this city is now engaged in contracting with the freedmen of this District to meet the wants expressed in the above requisitions.

C. & O. CANAL. - The business upon the canal continues inactive, but it is anticipated that a lively shipping business will commence next week. The fleet of coal boats have not yet arrived from Cumberland, and it is not expected until next week. The stock of coal on the wharves at Georgetown is limited, and the shipments are of little importance.

James Davis and John Veale, charged with stealing horses from parties in Washington city. were arrested early yesterday morning, at the residence of Veale, about eight miles beyond Dranesville, Va., taken to Washington, and held in security of $1000 each to apear again for further examination.
